This mobile app can tell you if you are overspeeding on Expressway

NHAI launches 'Rajmargyatra' mobile app to ensure safe, smooth travel on National Highways

Mysuru, Nov. 19 (BCT)- Next time you are cruising on the Mysuru-Bengaluru Expressway, the 'Rajmargyatra' app launched by the National Highway Authority of India (NHAI) will come in handy as you can set the speed limit and get alerted if you cross the prescribed speed limit, find nearby hospitals or fuel stations. Not only this. You can recharge your FASTag as well.

NHAI has launched the app in a bid to improve user experience on Highways and create a 'citizen-centric unified mobile application.' The app is currently available in Hindi & English and can be downloaded via Google Play Store and iOS App Store.

The app accesses the user location and points out the nearest Highway and will also display the toll charges. There is a phone number displayed of the Highway Administrator that can be reached in case of need.

According to a release from the Ministry of Road Transport and Highways, 'Rajmargyatra' is a user-friendly app that will help provide travellers with comprehensive information about India's Highways and also offer them an efficient grievance redressal mechanism. The app gives the users over-speeding notifications and voice-assistance to encourage responsible and safe driving behaviour.

With a click of a button, users can reach out in case they are in an emergency. There are separate sections for Highway assistance (1033), Police Help (112) and connects the user to 112 India App. One can even record the journey with the app.

'Rajmargyatra' app serves as a one-stop repository of essential information for NH users. Travellers can get real-time weather conditions, timely broadcast notifications and access to details about nearby toll plazas, petrol pumps, hospitals, hotels and other essential services that ensure a seamless and safe journey.

The app comes equipped with an inbuilt complaint redressal and escalation mechanism. Users can easily report Highway-related issues, attaching geo-tagged videos or photos for better clarity. The registered complaints will be handled in a time-bound manner, with system-generated escalations to higher authorities in case of any delays. Users can also track the status of their grievances for complete transparency.

'Rajmargyatra' app integrates its services with various bank portals, making it convenient for users to recharge their FASTags, avail monthly passes and access other FASTag-related services — all within a single platform.

EDITOR'S BOTTOMLINE

With global warming and climate change, the surge in dengue cases has been dominating the news. It's logical that these issues are discussed together, as they are deeply linked. The shift in climatic conditions is enabling dengue to spread to previously unaffected areas, infecting an increasing number of people. The only effective means of shielding ourselves from this escalating threat is through decisive public health action. These measures against mosquitoes and other disease vectors include fogging, inspecting buildings for stagnant water, applying larvicides, and guiding people on personal protection. To understand the spectrum of vector-borne diseases, both old and new, and to develop control strategies, we need a cadre of public health entomologists.

Rising temperatures, increased rainfall, and changing ecological conditions have expanded the geographic range of insects, allowing them to thrive in regions where they were previously absent. Through research and surveillance, public health entomologists can address threats using cuttingedge research in genomics to understand insects' disease-transmission abilities. For example, the Tata Institute for Genetics and Society, Bengaluru, identified genetic mutations linked to insecticide resistance in mosquitoes, paving the way for improved vector control strategies. Other methods, like the sterile insect technique, Wolbachia infection of mosquitoes, and genetic manipulations, including gene drive technology, are being tested in different species of mosquitoes to prevent disease transmission.

Currently, there are not nearly as many public health entomologists engaged with State Governments and Municipalities as there should be. Given the critical role they play in public health, there should be at least one entomologist in every district. ICMR has now increased their capacity for public health entomologist training to about 70 per year, and medical colleges must follow suit. Without their expertise, tailored interventions, early detection, and rapid response to vector-borne disease outbreaks will not be possible. Entomologists' inputs are crucial for safeguarding the health of our communities.

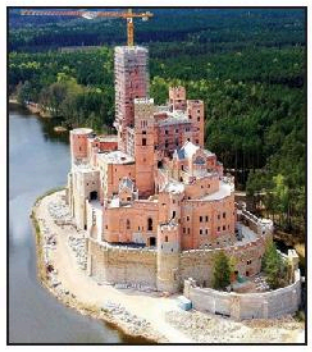
Man grows banana trees in the middle of road

Tokyo: A Japanese man planted three banana trees in the median strip of a major road in Kurume City and watered them daily for two years before anyone noticed their existence.

The man from Kurume City, Fukuoka Prefecture, was recently ordered to remove three banana trees he had illegally planted and cared for in the median strip of a busy city road for a couple of years. It's unclear why the man chose to plant the trees on public property and in a median strip of all places, but they eventually got so big that they began affecting motorists' field of view. It wasn't difficult for authorities to identify the man responsible for the trees, as he had been watering the tropical plants at least twice a day for the last two years. He was ordered to remove the trees, or risk spending up to a year in jail or pay a fine of 500,000 yen ($3,350).

Poland's controversial medieval castle



Notecka: Western Poland's Notecka Forest is home to one of the country's most controversial buildings, a medieval-style complex known as Stobnica Castle. The construction of Stobnica Castle began in 2015, but it didn't start attracting nationwide attention until 2018, when people started wondering what was this building, who was the owner and how had they obtained a building permit for it?

The funds for the construction have also sparked controversy, with some news sources claiming that they originated from offshore accounts. Sources said that the Castle will be completed around 2025, while others speculate that it might end up being demolished.

Wasting money on interlock tiles

Sir,

It is observed everywhere nowadays that the Mysuru City Corporation (MCC) is laying interlocking tiles for the footpaths. It is indeed a good initiative which provides safe and comfortable walking area to pedestrians.

But, unfortunately in many areas due to improper maintenance and timely not removing the weeds, grass, small plants that are growing between the gaps of these tiles, these are slowing occupying the entire footpaths.

If these are not attended to quickly, the entire area of footpaths will get occupied and that forces pedestrians to again walk on roads which is very unsafe. As a result, the entire expenses incurred would go waste and it is a drain of public money. Hope the civic authorities will come out with monthly maintenance schedules, to avoid the drain of citizens hard-earned money which is utilised to lay the tiles.

From student leader to Leader of Opposition

'Man of Mettle' Vokkaliga strongman R. Ashoka

Bengaluru, Nov. 19 - R. Ashoka, who as a student leader grabbed eyeballs and served imprisonment along with BJP patriarch L.K. Advani during the dark days of Emergency and later rose to become the Deputy Chief Minister of the State is all set to take over the mantle as Leader of Opposition in Legislative Assembly.

The five-decade long relentless struggle and experience in public life has catapulted Ashoka to the key post in Karnataka Legislature, that had generated heated debate for lying vacant even six months after the new Government came to power in the State in May 2023.

As an MLA for 26 years, 66-year-old Ashoka is a blend of rare qualities like-being affable with all, with no enemies and easily mingling with people. He currently represents Padmanabhanagar Constituency in the Assembly and has emerged as an undefeated leader for having made it to the Assembly for consecutive seven terms.

Born on July 1, 1957 to Ramaiah and Anjanamma couple of Jalahalli, Bengaluru, Ashoka came under the influence of Rashtriya Swayamsevak Sangh (RSS) in his childhood. As a student leader, he soon came into notice and was a Kabaddi champion during his days in Vishweshwarapuram College, Bengaluru, from where he obtained a degree in science.

Ashoka gained a foothold in politics, especially after he came into contact with tall BJP leaders like Advani and several others, when they were incarcerated at Bangalore Central Prisons during the struggle against Emergency imposed by Prime Minister Indira Gandhi between 1975 and 77. They were kept behind bars for a month.

R. Ashoka

Uttarahalli debut

In the year 1995, Ashoka was made BJP Bengaluru Unit President when he launched a struggle against the State Government. During the by-elections held for the Legislative Assembly in 1997, Ashoka made a successful debut from Uttarahalli Constituency (that ceases to exist now), the size of which was the biggest in the whole country. Since then there was no looking back for Ashoka who went on to win the subsequent polls held in 1999 and 2004 from the same Constituency.

Following the delimitation of the Constituencies, Uttarahalli Constituency represented by Ashoka for three times was abolished and Ashoka had to shift to Padmanabhanagar Constituency in 2008 elections. He continued his winning streak here too and has been consistently emerging victorious in the elections held in the year 2013, 2018 and in May 2023, for seven times in a row.

Madilu Kit for newborns

For the first time, Ashoka became a Cabinet Minister during BJP-Janata Dal (Secular) Coalition Government in 2006-07 and was allocated Health and Family Welfare portfolio. By implementing a new scheme called 'Madilu Kit', Ashoka ensured that the newborns belonging to Below Poverty Line (BPL) families get a healthy cover. Besides, he gave the much-needed fillip to the system by paying surprise visits to hospitals and also made efforts to check the menace of quacks at the rural side.

When Ashoka became a Minister again during the tenure of Chief Minister B.S. Yediyurappa from 2008 to 10 and held portfolios like that of Transport and Food and Civil Supplies and Consumer Affairs, many pro-people initiatives were taken up. The Transport Department opened doors towards modernisation with new buses added to the fleet along with redevelopment of bus stations, with a hi-tech touch.

During the year 2010-12, he also got the additional responsibility as Home Minister and implemented a people friendly Police system, besides taking measures to ensure law and order and peace in the State.

When Jagadish Shettar became the Chief Minister in 2012-13, Ashoka was elevated to the post of Deputy Chief Minister, but continued to handle the portfolios of Home and Transport Departments. He played a key role in the party winning maximum seats in 2010 and 2015 Bruhat Bengaluru Mahanagara Palike (BBMP) elections.

Administration at doorsteps

When Yediyurappa returned as Chief Minister in 2019 and was succeeded by Basavaraj Bommai in 2021, Ashoka was the Revenue Minister. By devising a novel programme called- Jilladhikarigala Nade Halli Kade (Deputy Commissioners' walk towards villages), Ashoka bridged the gap between Revenue Department and villages. Under the programme, Ashoka stayed overnight at the villages and made a bid to find solutions on the spot to their grievances.

Likewise, he succeeded in redressing many grievances and also launched a system to reach various pensions under Social Security Schemes to disabled persons, senior citizens and widows at their doorstep.

By building Mini Vidhana Soudhas at Taluk level and earmarking sites for the purpose, Ashoka streamlined the administrative machinery. By omitting Sections 79/A and 79/B under Karnataka Land Reforms Act, Ashoka made the buying of agricultural lands easy even for non-agriculturists, so that the interested can venture into farming activities. By reducing Registration and Stamp Duties, the State exchequer saw enormous revenue, with an overwhelming response from property buyers.

Distribution of title deeds

As a Revenue Minister, he also created a record by arranging the distribution of title deeds of houses to over 50,000 beneficiaries at one go at the hands of Prime Minister Narendra Modi at Malakhed village in Sedam taluk, Kalaburagi district.

As the Vice-Chairman of State Disaster Management Committee, Ashoka strived to provide adequate compensation to those affected during natural calamities. He had also played a key role during COVID-19 pandemic in 2019, by reaching the medical kits to the affected lot.

The heart-touching moment was when Ashoka conducted the mass immersion of ashes of COVID victims, who had no relatives to conduct the ritual, at River Cauvery in Mandya district.

BJP in search of new faces for LS seats

Bengaluru, Nov. 19 (KMS& DM)- With the BJP High Command most likely to deny seats to the aged and unpopular MPs in Karnataka, the party is looking for fielding new candidates in as many as 13 Lok Sabha (LS) Constituencies in the State for the forthcoming polls.

Following the political retirement of Chamarajanagar MP V. Sreenivasa Prasad, former CM D.V. Sadananda Gowda and a few others due to age factor, the BJP Central leadership is looking for popular faces in as many as 13 LS Constituencies.

The party is likely to deny tickets to V. Sreenivasa Prasad (Chamarajanagar), D.V. Sadananda Gowda (Bengaluru North), Shivakumar Udasi (Haveri), B.N. Bachhegowda (Chikkaballapur), G.S. Basavaraju (Tumakuru), Mangala Suresh Angadi (Belagavi), P.C. Gaddigoudar (Bagalkot), Ramesh Jigajinagi (Vijayapura), Raja Amaresh Nayak (Raichur), Devendrappa (Ballari), Ananth Kumar Hegde (Uttara Kannada) and a few others, for one reason or the other.

The BJP is looking for credible alternative candidates in these Constituencies to retain the seats it had won in the 2019 LS polls.

The BJP had won 25 of the 28 LS seats in the 2019 polls, even though the Congress-JD(S) coalition Government was then in power. Now being the Opposition in the State, the BJP hopes to win at least 20 of the 28 seats in next year's LS polls and help Modi becoming the PM again. The ruling Congress in the State is gearing up to win the same number of seats for boosting the Congress party's chances of returning to power at the Centre.

JD(S) suspends C.M. Ibrahim

Bengaluru, Nov. 19- Former JD(S) State President C.M. Ibrahim was on Friday suspended from the party for alleged anti-party activities.

In an order issued on Saturday, Party supremo and former PM H.D. Deve Gowda cited the 'contradictory statements' issued by Ibrahim regarding the party's alliance with the BJP, despite being part of the earlier discussions related to it.

JD(S) had in October dissolved the party's State Executive Committee and Deve Gowda appointed former CM H.D. Kumaraswamy as the party's 'adhoc' President in place of Ibrahim, who had also claimed that his party was the 'original' JD(S) and had hinted at splitting the party.

Mysuru, Nov. 19 (MTY&DM)- District Minister Dr. H.C. Mahadevappa on Thursday inaugurated the renovated Government Higher Primary School (NMKA Balabodhini School) on Chamaraja Double Road.

Stressing on the need for imparting education to children in their mother-tongue Kannada, the Minister said that English can be used as a communicative knowledge.

Noting that the school should impart education based on the educational system and curriculum introduced by the Government, he said that science should be used for development of mankind and not for destruction.

"Education is a must for human development and it should be imparted with a scientific and intellectual background as highlighted in the Constitution. The education thus received will help us in engaging pro-societal activities," he said.

Emphasising that Government Schools should look at imparting quality education, he said that Mayor Shivakumar, who had studied in this School, has extended all support in the renovation of his alma mater. Observing that parents too should strive for a good future of their wards as children have a good grasping power at this age, he said that children will remember forever the good education that they were provided.

Interview

Know about Autism: There is Hope

Lack of awareness about autism is the major impediment in the field of 'autism disorder,' tells Dr. Naveen Nagarajan, a Neuroscientist and Geneticist, University of Utah, USA, who was in Mysuru recently to deliver an awareness session on ASD (Autism Spectrum Disorder). An alumnus of Yuvaraja College, University of Mysore, Dr. Naveen has been a FRAXA Fellow at the Picower Institute of Learning and Memory, Massachusetts Institute of Technology (MIT), Boston.

Sujata Rajpal

Dr. Naveen, son of S. Nagarajan and M.S. Pushpavalli, retired Head Mistress of Royal English School, is the elder brother of Dr. Shubha Nagaraj, who serves as the Head of the Department of Applied Mathematics at NIE, Mysuru.

Sujata Rajpal met with this son of Mysuru for Star of Mysore to know about ASD. Excerpts.—Ed

Dr. Naveen Nagarajan

Myths and Truths about autism

MYTH: If one child is autistic, then the likelihood of second child also being autistic is high.

TRUTH: Even if autism is hereditary, the second child most likely would be a normal child.

MYTH: All autistic children have hidden savant skills.

TRUTH: Just like other children, every child with autism doesn't have a savant skill.

MYTH: People with autism don't feel emotions.

TRUTH: They have the emotions but lack skills to express.

By Sujata Rajpal

Star of Mysore (SOM): To what extent Autism is curable?

Dr. Naveen Nagarajan: Autism is not a disease which can be cured overnight with medicines and treatment. It's a neuro-developmental disorder which manifests in repetitive behaviours, chronic anxiety, communication impairment and lack of social skills.

Early diagnosis plays a key role in mitigating symptoms and helps development outcomes. Unfortunately, most families tend to ignore any unnaturalistic behaviour in their child; so by the time autism is diagnosed, it is quite late and very little can be done. Most of the brain development happens in the early years of life; so if intervention therapies can be carried out right away, the child can become fairly independent and 'near normal behaviour' over a period of time.

SOM: There is a lot of misinformation about autism. Scientifically which factors lead to the birth of children with autism?

Dr. Naveen: Genetic, non-genetic and environmental influences lead to the birth of children with autism. Various factors result in autism such as high level of psychological and mental stress in pregnant women, maternal immune infection, environmental pollutants, genetic mutation, and genetic disorders associated with inbred cousin marriage.

A study published in 'The American Journal of Psychiatry' found that children born to first cousins were twice as likely to develop autism as children born to unrelated parents. Prenatal exposure to high level of air-borne pollutants may be one of the causal factors that lead to genetic mutation of cells leading to autism. High level of pollution, contaminated environment, adverse personal circumstances, heredity factors are not in our hands but some are definitely in the family's control.

SOM: How does awareness help in autism?

Dr. Naveen: Awareness about autism can help tremendously in improving the autistic scenario in India. There are scientific factors which result in autism; it has nothing to do with karma of past life as believed by many. It is extremely important to educate girls to take care of their personal, physical and mental health because they would be the future mothers.

SOM: Please tell about your personal journey in the field of autism.

Dr. Naveen: I am married to Harsha Naveen, a State Government employee at the Department of Juvenile Justice, Salt Lake City, Utah. I have two sons. My elder son who is now 12 years is a high functional autistic. Because his autism was diagnosed by the age of 2, we could start various behavioural therapies for him at a very early age. Being a scientist, I treated him from scientific and human standpoint.

As a result, today he can talk, goes to the school for normal children and is fairly independent. He is gifted in classical music and Vedic mantras. Over time with persistent training, he became a voracious reader. In parallel, so many children with similar conditions that did not receive therapies due to parental negligence and/or awareness do not utter a single word. Most development of the brain happens in the formative years so the earlier we diagnose, the sooner the therapy can be initiated.

SOM: What are your recommendations to bring comfort and positivity to the families of people with autism?

Dr. Naveen: A lot needs to be done for this small but significant size of the population affected by autism. The first and foremost is Genome sequencing which is done for the new-born child to detect any abnormality in the genes. This would alert a lot of parents that they have to take strong steps. In western countries, it is a part of the health system. After the birth of the child, like other tests, Genome sequencing too is done. In India, we need centres for Genome sequencing either in the hospital itself or separately.

Like other children, children with autism too have hidden potentials. I would want to start a school for autistic children where we work on discovering their capabilities to make them the best in their chosen field. If a child is good in music, we would give him the best training in music which would enable him to reach the pinnacle in music.

Along with this, we would teach the children the basic life skills. As of now, this is just a vision but I hope to make it a reality one day. I am very impressed with the work Asha Kirana Hospital, Mysuru, is doing towards HIV. I hope to work with them on autistic children.

WORD OF THE DAY

Exigent

Pronunciation: EK-suh-junt.
Meaning: Exigent is a formal word that describes things that need to be dealt with immediately, as well as people who expect significant time, attention, effort, etc. from other people.
Origin: Exigent is a formal word with meanings closely tied to its Latin forbear, exigere, meaning "to demand." Exigent things and people demand attention—for example, an exigent client expects so much that they are hard to satisfy, and exigent circumstances are so significant that they can be used to justify certain Police actions without the warrant typically required. Before exigent joined the language in the early 1600s, the noun exigency was being used to refer to something that is necessary in a particular situation—for example, the exigencies of an emergency situation might require that certain usual precautions be ignored. That word dates to the late 1500s, but even earlier, in the mid-1400s, exigence was on the scene doing the same job. All three words—exigent, exigency, and exigence—continue to meet the demands of English users, albeit not frequently in everyday conversation.
Example: "People don't tend to reveal their true selves while careening across a landscape. Unless, of course, civilization has ended—a cheap set-up that, I must begrudgingly admit, motivates character development in an exigent way. The most famous literary and filmic specimen that focuses, as games do, on spatial traversal amid existential threat is Lord of the Rings—which, of course, exerted a strong influence on the development of games in the first place." — Ian Bogost, The Atlantic, 29 Jan. 2023.

THE ODD WORD

Ecclesiastry

Affairs of the church.

PHRASE OF THE DAY

Easier said than done

Meaning: The phrase 'Easier said than done' is said of a task that is easier to talk about than to do.
Origin: Like so many popular sayings, the origin of the phrase 'Easier said than done' can be found in venerable literature. This common expression was first seen in print in the Terentius Afer's 1483 book, Vulgaria Terentii, and was worded in the language of the day as: "It is easyer to saye than to do."
Example: "Finding a good job is easier said than done."
